

A BANKER POPS OVER.

Banker Agrellius of Lindsborg Joins the Mourners

AROUND THE POPULIST ALTAR.

He Doesn't Like the Position of Some of the Republican Party Leaders on Silver.

A. E. Agrellius, a banker at Lindsborg, McPherson county, and Secretary Bristow of the Republican central committee, have recently had a correspondence which is interesting.

Secretary Bristow wrote to Mr. Agrellius asking for a contribution, to which he replied:

"I can almost say, 'not one cent for tribute, but millions for defense,' because contributions to a fund to elect monometallists, or so weak bimetalists as to amount to the same thing, is more like tribute to an oppressor than aid to our business interests. Your recommendations are correct, 'I am a reliable Republican,' and have voted the ticket and worked for it for twenty years, never having voted for any other party. The party, its welfare and success are dear to me, but my own interests and those of my family and friends are of more consequence to me than any party, and if our farmers and business men, I will give my little contributions to some party that can see the hand of oppression and cast it off."

"It is not my intention to do as some others do, go out of the ranks and herd with a party that while it might be right on this question is radically wrong on some other questions of great moment, but to appeal to those who are in the lead to heed the cries of a distressed people, and like the grand Republicans of '61 to '68, take and hold the position of a friend to the oppressed, retrieve the ruin imperiled fortune as a party, following the advice of J. D. Cameron and place four words in the platform: 'High tariff and free silver,' and pledging themselves to work for the success of that principle and all that it implies, restriction of emigration, arbitration of disputes between capital and labor and pleading the cause of the common people."

"Give us a guaranty that our money shall be used for our interests, as well as for party success, and I pledge you as much as I can spare, and will try to get others to aid."

Secretary Bristow replied to Mr. Agrellius as follows:

"Topeka, Kan., Aug. 4, 1894."

"My Dear Sir:—Yours of August 3 is received and contents noted. Your closing sentence is, 'Give us the guaranty that our money shall be used for our interests as well as for party success, and I pledge you as much as I can spare and will try to get others to aid.' This is just what we pledge to you. We do not know of a single Republican in Kansas that is not in favor of the restoration of silver as a money metal. I know there is not one on the state ticket. As to the manner of restoring it, that would be a question of compromise as all legislation is where there is such a wide difference of opinion."

"I do not agree with you in your more radical statements, but I believe there is no material difference between your ideas and those entertained by Major Morrill and Mr. Blue in regard to their views on the silver question. With best wishes, I am, very truly, J. L. Bristow, Secretary."

Mr. Agrellius, however, refused to be comforted and has joined the Populists. The correspondence was sent to T. L. Bond of Salina who, it is said, is to stump the state for the Populists as a free silver Republican.

WON'T MOVE ITS TRACKS.

The Santa Fe at Chicago Conflicts With the Sanitary Canal.

At Chicago in a few days officials of the Atchafalaya, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad and the trustees of the sanitary district of Chicago will come together to discuss the best disposal of the Santa Fe tracks which travel down the Des Plaines valley with the sanitary canal.

The sanitary canal is now building, and the route it takes will compel the Santa Fe to cross it four times between Chicago and Joliet, which ultimately, if the full purpose of the canal is carried out in making it a deep-water navigable canal, will necessitate the building of four expensive railroad drawbridges, each of which it is estimated will cost $250,000, or $1,000,000 for bridges alone. These bridges will have to be built, if the road is left as it is, not only lowering the efficiency of the canal for navigation purposes, but obstructing the operations of the Santa Fe road, and making the sanitary district liable for heavy damages for these obstructions.

Two plans are under consideration. One is to keep the railroad on the south side of the canal from Bridgeport to Joliet. This will avoid the necessity of building four bridges.

The other alternative is to move the road about 1,000 feet north of the main channel all the way down the valley, crossing the canal at Bridgeport and again at Joliet, reducing the bridges to two, and making the crossing at an angle, which engineers consider best for draw bridges. It is estimated that which ever route is adopted about fifteen miles of track will have to be moved, and the cost will aggregate about $500,000 for the entire distance between Bridgeport and Joliet. It is also estimated that in any event the sanitary district will have to expend $500,000 to take care of the Santa Fe tracks, whether the north or south side route is taken, and that it will take $1,000,000 in bridges and other damages if the road is left as at present.

Famous Kite Shaped Track.

Holton races August 13th to 17th. Special train daily leaves Topeka at 9 a. m. returning 7 p. m. 90 cents round trip. Via Rock Island route.

A Beautifier For Ladies. Everybody admires a beautiful complexion. Ladies who have used the celebrated Elder Flower Cream, recommend it as the greatest complexion beautifier in the market. It is used by society ladies. For sale by J. K. Jones.

Read the "Wants." Many of them are as interesting as news items. See if it is not so.

The Topeka Drug Co. is ready for business.

The Daily STATE JOURNAL prints all the news.

SNAP SHOTS AT HOME NEWS.

Clouds—nothing more. The city council meets tonight. The hottest place in town is one of the local "ice cream parlors."

In police court parlance it's "white woman" and "colored lady."

Lee Jones says his challenge to heavy weight bicyclists is still open.

Thermometers in the country on Saturday registered as high as 112 degrees.

It is said that a Topeka girl was out horseback riding last night in bloomers.

Rev. J. B. Thomas of the First Baptist church, and his family, are in Colorado.

Rock Island Superintendent of Telegraph A. K. Liagrati is a kodak artist.

The man that puts on a high collar these mornings is sorry for it before noon.

The Anvil polka was the only selection that drew any applause at the band concert yesterday.

Major Tom Anderson will be the guest of Joe Hooker post of the U. A. R. reunion at Hutchinson.

Harry Safford and Ben Clover will speak at a Republican meeting at Rossville next Saturday.

Mr. Jennings' boundless rains for this month seem to exist chiefly in that prophet's rheumatic leg.

"V. P. A." promises to be popular with college young men who have to send their expensive account home.

Whenever you see a crowd about the front of a store these days you may bet there is a thermometer there.

W. D. Driver will move his paper, The Kansas Blackman, from Topeka to Coffeyville where he formerly lived.

"The reason this hot weather is caused" so little sickness is because the air is dry," said a Topeka physician today.

The temperature on the unpaved residence streets west of Kansas avenue is from 4 to 6 degrees lower than on the avenue.

There is wealth and fame in store for the man who will invent an open refrigerator that will throw out cold like a stove does heat.

George Neil, a well-known Shawnee county farmer, has purchased a house on Fillmore street and will move his family to the city this fall.

There will be a called meeting of the people interested in the Associated charities at library hall Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

If you see something strange in the eastern heavens tonight don't let it worry you. Some boys are going to fly a kite with a lantern attachment.

They had roast ox, roast chicken and roasted ears at the Republican barbecue at Meriden Saturday, and Ben Clover roasted the state administration.

A Topeka man who was on the train coming from Kansas City last night insisted on giving the conductor a cigarette picture instead of his ticket.

A big furniture car stood in the Santa Fe yards today. Some one had written on its side in chalk, "Flush, little boxcar, don't you cry; you'll be a freight house bye-and-bye."

Receiver John J. McCook was one of the most prominent leaders against Dr. Briggs in the latter's heresy trial. He is also a brother of General Alexander McDowell McCook of Ft. Leavenworth.

NORTH TOPEKA.

Items of Interest from the North Side of the River.

Mr. Al Davis of Horton spent Sunday with the family of W. C. Sly.

Two boys are reported to have escaped from the Reform school Saturday.

Fred G. Tompkins is suffering from a dangerous attack of malarial fever.

Mrs. Hannah Suit has gone to visit friends in Kansas City for a few days.

Mrs. John M. Bryan celebrated her birthday by dining a number of friends yesterday.

The screams which were heard in the southwest part of town Saturday evening, proceeded from the North Topeka insane asylum.

N. W. Sly returned this morning from Arkansas City. He says the crops are in a much worse condition down there than they are here.

C. E. Tillson, a breeder of fine horses at Junction City, was the guest of M. L. Potter yesterday. He is on his way to the races at Holton.

Henry M. Hale, of Hale & Evans, returned last night from his eastern trip. He says the corn and grass between here and Kansas City is still in good condition.

Go to Will Griffith's for the best tin, galvanized iron and pump work.

Monarch gasoline stoves at Henry's. Go to Henry's for roofing and spouting.

A full leather extension top surroy for $100, at Lukens Bros., North Topeka.

"Our New Delight" and all Dangler stores at H. M. Climes.

W. C. Sly has moved his millinery two doors south of the old stand, and is closing out summer millinery at cost—823 North Kansas avenue.

The Republican League club will meet at 1910 Kansas avenue. Galetta Nichols is down for an address and a number of speakers are expected from the South side.

Mrs. Ed Klusman, who was taken to the hospital a week ago to undergo a surgical operation, is rapidly recovering and it is thought she will be well in a short time.

W. M. Gushard, of Gushard & Rorabaugh, has returned from Kansas City, where he has been undergoing a course of medical treatment. He will go back about September 1st for a short time.

John J. Schenck, the candidate of the Populists for representative from this district, was nominated Saturday for the same office by the Democrats. A resolution personally laudatory of the candidate was passed.

Famous Kite Shaped Track. Holton races August 13th to 17th. Special train daily leaves Topeka at 9 a. m. returning 7 p. m. 90 cents round trip. Via Rock Island route.

A Beautifier For Ladies. Everybody admires a beautiful complexion. Ladies who have used the celebrated Elder Flower Cream, recommend it as the greatest complexion beautifier in the market. It is used by society ladies. For sale by J. K. Jones.

Read the "Wants." Many of them are as interesting as news items. See if it is not so.

The Topeka Drug Co. is ready for business.

The Daily STATE JOURNAL prints all the news.

The Topeka Drug Co. is ready for business.

The Daily STATE JOURNAL prints all the news.

AN ECCENTRIC CANDIDATE.

Hugh Cameron Has Many Unique Claims to Distinction.

The laurels of sundry sockless and birsute statesmen are in danger, for there has arisen in Glen Burn, Douglas county, Kan., an aspiring candidate for congressional honors who rides a mule when he makes stump speeches, who not only scorns socks, but boots and shoes as well, and whose whiskers are luxuriant beyond all precedent.

The name of this unique individual is General Hugh Cameron, and his appearance and history will bear out the assertion that he is the oddest character Kansas has ever known.

His home is three miles from Lawrence, on the Kaw river, at what is known as Cameron bluff, and where he has lived for years known to his neighbors as scholar, soldier, celibate and vegetarian. He was born in Pennsylvania about 63 years ago and is a relative of the Camerons who have been so prominent in Pennsylvania and national politics for years past. Over 30 years ago, when he was still in the vigor of young manhood, he appeared at Lawrence. He built a rude cabin, mingled little with his neighbors and lived as a hermit because the girl he loved jilted him on the day set for their nuptials.

He declared that he would never marry, and he never has. He swore he would work 20 hours a day, sleep four and eat no meat, and a Kansas newspaper man avers that he has faithfully followed this routine. He also swore that there would be whiskers on the moon before he would shave his beard or cut his lunatic mane, and his pictures furnish prima facie evidence that he has also kept this vow.

He braids his hair and whiskers and coils the braids around his neck. When his whiskers are at large, they tickle the grass as he walks along. When he wants his mule, he uses one of his braids as a lasso, it is said, but this is without doubt a campaign lie.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

A GIANT IN STATURE.

John T. Rich, Who Has Been Renominated For Governor of Michigan.

John T. Rich, who has been renominated for governor of Michigan by the Republicans, was born in Conneautville, Crawford county, Pa., on April 23, 1841. When seven years of age, John was sent to farmer relations in Michigan. His father followed a fur and bought the farm in Elba, Lapeer county, which the governor owns and tills now whenever he gets a day off at Lansing.

Young Rich worked hard on the paternal farm as a boy and received a common school education. Then for four terms he presided over a district school. In 1863 he married Miss Lucretia Winship of Atlas, and she is yet his beloved helpmeet. From early manhood politics fascinated him, and at 27 he was county supervisor, an office he held four terms. In 1872 he began a six years' service in the state house of representatives, during part of which time he was chairman of the agricultural college committee and speaker of the house. In 1880 he was sent to the state senate and later was elected to congress. He took his wife to Washington with him, and, unlike thousands of other congressmen, managed to save a part of his small salary. He ran for congress again in 1882, but was beaten by E. C. Carleton.

In 1879 and 1891 Mr. Rich was chairman of the Republican state conventions, and in 1890 Secretary Foster made him a member of the commission to revise the wool standards of the country. He was also appointed to classify the wool samples at the World's fair. He is prominent in agricultural and business circles and is president of several influential organizations. He is young and vigorous looking and is a giant in stature, being 6 feet tall and weighing 200 pounds. He looks much more like a successful farmer than a politician.

He declared that he would never marry, and he never has. He swore he would work 20 hours a day, sleep four and eat no meat, and a Kansas newspaper man avers that he has faithfully followed this routine. He also swore that there would be whiskers on the moon before he would shave his beard or cut his lunatic mane, and his pictures furnish prima facie evidence that he has also kept this vow.

He braids his hair and whiskers and coils the braids around his neck. When his whiskers are at large, they tickle the grass as he walks along. When he wants his mule, he uses one of his braids as a lasso, it is said, but this is without doubt a campaign lie.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.

At the outbreak of the war Cameron was commissioned captain of Company F, Second Kansas cavalry, and served with gallantry throughout the war, leaving the service a lieutenant colonel and brevet brigadier general. He calls himself an independent tramp candidate for congress, nominated by the George Washington corps of home protectionists, and says that in his campaign the golden rule and the decalogue will be as carefully observed as possible under existing partisan demoralization.